

ABSTRACT

An electrostatic latent-image developing toner comprising:

a core particle and a shell layer formed on an outer portion thereof, wherein the shell layer comprises a crystalline polyester resin having a softening point from 60 to 120°C at 70 to 100 % by weight of the entire shell-layer constituent resin, and an image-forming method using the toner.